

Give the Gift of Learning

Joy Amaro, Executive Director

First 5 Glenn County

Lights are glowing, festive songs are playing on the radio and everyone seems to have a little extra hop in their step. First 5 Glenn County knows that this time of year can be busy with many things to do around the holiday season. That's why we encourage families to take a moment and spend quality time together! After all, studies show spending time together as a family helps strengthen and build children's self-esteem and stimulate their development.

Below is a list of simple, hands-on school readiness activities First 5 Glenn County offers parents to do with their children ages 0 to 5:

- ? Borrow holiday books from the library and read stories together
- ? Sing carols and other holiday songs together
- ? Work on craft projects such as picture frames made from Popsicle sticks or snowmen from cotton balls
- ? Help your child draw pictures of his or her favorite holiday memories and stories and display them around the house as decorations
- ? Invite older children into the kitchen and let them help mix or measure ingredients, or decorate cookies and other holiday treats
- ? Make holiday cards or have children draw pictures to put in the cards

By interacting with your children, you are not only filling their time with fun, resourceful activities, but you are also providing them with early learning experiences to help them prepare for school. First 5 Glenn County knows kids love the lights, the stories, the

About First 5 Glenn County

Research shows that a child's brain develops most dramatically in the first five years and what parents and caregivers do to support their child's growth during these years will have a meaningful impact throughout life. Based on this research, California voters passed Proposition 10 in 1998, adding a 50 cents-per-pack tax on cigarettes to support expectant parents and children ages 0 to 5. First 5 Glenn County will distribute approximately $300,000 this year in Prop. 10 revenues to programs and services that meet local needs.
